MANAGER'S COMMENT:

With the end of the rate hike cycle, uncertainties over the timing and quantum of rate cuts will continue to pose volatility in the market. Our view is that policy rates across the advanced economies will remain unchanged until 2H2024. For Malaysia, we expect Bank Negara Malaysia to maintain OPR at the current 3.00% rate for the whole of 2024, which is supportive of the local economic growth and align with the peak in global interest rates.

Following the recent correction in the UST, the market is now more reflective of the "higher for longer" narrative. We do not discount the possibility of further correction if the US inflation numbers remain more stubborn than expected, further delaying the rate cut cycle. This may see USD remaining strong and further foreign outflow from our local Sukuk markets in the near term. Despite the short-term volatility, the outlook of rate cuts in 2024 bodes well for the fixed income market. Hence, we maintain our duration strategy of 3 - 6 years, keeping to the lower band in the short term as we see possibility of some correction. However, we look to lengthen duration if we see some retracement in the GII yields, for good trade opportunities. We will continue to focus on high quality corporate sukuk for yield pick-up.
